

Editorial by:
Article's Editor -in-Chief

In the Name of Allah, the Most Compassionate, the Most Merciful

With praise and gratitude to Allah Almighty, we are pleased to present the sixth issue of the journal «National Security and Strategy».

It is both an honor and a privilege to see this new issue mark another step in our ongoing journey to provide comprehensive and in-depth strategic insights into national security issues across its various domains and dimensions. Our mission is grounded in accurate information and sound analysis, through this intellectual platform dedicated to studying the contemporary risks, challenges, and threats that affect the security of our nation and the stability of our societies in an ever-changing world. We firmly believe that promoting national security concepts is the cornerstone of homeland stability and the prosperity of peoples especially in light of the rapid transformations that have reshaped numerous concepts across political, military, economic, social, environmental, and technological spheres. These are precisely the areas of focus and specialization of this journal. The sharp global changes we are witnessing today have demonstrated how these domains are increasingly interconnected, which in turn highlights the vital importance of scientific research in addressing and understanding them.

The concept of national security has today become more comprehensive and complex. This underscores the importance of expanding the scope of research efforts and preparing minds capable of critical thinking to support sound and informed decision-making. In this context, we are committed to serving as a bridge between researchers interested in national security issues and decision-makers, grounded in our belief that scientific research is the foundation of progress and development, and that knowledge is the most powerful weapon for confronting the challenges of our time. Accordingly, we place great emphasis on the quality of the research we publish, ensuring rigorous and high-level peer review processes to foster a culture of responsible academic inquiry and to promote awareness built on a strong foundation. This issue features contributions from a distinguished group of researchers, who have presented pioneering studies in their respective fields, addressing critical and timely issues. These studies have undergone thorough peer review in accordance with the highest international academic standards, and we are confident that they will serve as valuable references for scholars and professionals alike, opening new avenues for research and exploration.

In this context, the journal is committed to being a bridge between knowledge and practice, and a platform for publishing research and studies marked by accuracy, objectivity, and innovation, capable of responding swiftly to emerging challenges, and backed by strong academic and research competencies. With this in mind, I invite everyone to become true partners in this journey. The journal is always open to pioneering ideas, promising voices, and rigorous research all contributing to the national awareness framework, and reinforcing a culture of security and stability amid today's rapidly changing global landscape. The journal also places special emphasis on and warmly welcomes participatory research, conducted by teams of researchers, each addressing a specific research point using sound and objective scientific methodologies. This collaborative approach adds significant scholarly value and enhances the credibility of the final results, making the final research a cornerstone for fostering innovation and creativity in Scientific Research to investigate in the skills of the future. Every well-grounded idea, every deep analysis, and every practical proposal published in the pages of this journal contributes to the protection of our national security, the stability of our homelands, and the future of our generations.

In conclusion, I would like to extend my heartfelt thanks to the Editorial Board, the Advisory Committee, the peer reviewers, the researchers, and everyone who contributed to the production of this publication, for their dedicated efforts in elevating the National Security and Strategy journal to a prestigious standing among leading academic periodicals. We promise to continue working with dedication and integrity, always striving to deliver the best, and to contribute to building an advanced and thriving scientific community seeking the help of God and believing in our ability to serve our nations and safeguard our national security.

..And Allah is the Bestower of Success...

Major General Pilot PhD / Hesham Elhalaby

*Consultant of the Director of the Military Academy for Postgraduate and Strategic Studies
Journal Editor-in-Chief*